

THE CHINOOK ADVANCE

Vol. 22

Chinook, Alberta. Thursday, Jan. 12th 1939

No.

RoundAbout Town

The curling game on Saturday night provided much entertainment. Did you see the new foursome their? Such a group must be the latest fad.

Who were the young folks who were seen speeding out of town in a dark blue car last Sunday evening? The filling station is kept busy these days.

Who was the young couple who were seen promenading along the railway track last Sunday afternoon?

It was reported that part of our orchestra spent last Saturday evening in Hanna. We hope they enjoyed the dance there, and got a rest from their own playing.

We saw George taking the younger girls for a sleigh ride last week. He must be trying to bring back memories of his own boyhood days.

SEEN BY US

A popular young lady making numerous calls at a certain home.

Miss X exceedingly busy in the phone office last week-end.

The Red & White Store Assistant busy with certain male customers.

A young couple giving a thorough demonstration of love making, in the curling rink one night this week.

License Cancelled For Olds Woman

Edmonton (C.P.) — License of Pidgeon nursing home at Olds has been cancelled, it was announced Wednesday by Dr. E. A. Braithwaite, chief coroner and inspector of hospitals for Alberta. The license was cancelled because of the use of pargoric, a sedative, Dr. Braithwaite said.

Deaths of three children at the home in December resulted in a coroner's jury on January 3 returning an open verdict which declared the children died of asphyxiation.

United Farmers Of Alberta

Re Farmers' International Broadcast

The United Farmers of Alberta will put on a special farmers' broadcast which will be put on by the organization at the time of the annual convention to be held January 17th to 20th at the Palliser Hotel, Calgary. This special broadcast will take place on Thursday evening at the time of the annual get-together dance which will start at 9:00 p. m. M. S. T. and last until 1:00 a. m. over radio station C. F. C. N. (1030 k. c.) During this period we will have the C. F. C. N. old time orchestra, we will have full charge of the broadcast for the rest of the evening. Fraternal greetings will be exchanged with farmer's organizations in British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, and all of the farmers' organizations within reach of the station across the line in U. S.

LOCAL NEWS

Mr. L. Cooley left for Calgary on Monday to attend the Ford Motor School.

Mr. Harry Trogan left for Calgary on Monday, enroute to the States where he will spend a few months.

Mrs. M. C. Nicholson was a Youngstown visitor on Tuesday.

Mr. R. Witt who has been visiting with relations in Saskatoon for the past two weeks returned home Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. McFall of Hanna were visitors at the Gilbertson home last week.

Mrs. W. Gallagher was a Youngstown visitor on Tuesday.

Mrs. Paul Seeger who has been visiting with her daughter in Hanna, returned last week.

Mrs. Kulek, Cappon arrived here this week to nurse her daughter who is suffering from an attack of quinsy.

License Refunds To Total $45,000

Edmonton (C. P.) — Refund on motor license plates turned in to the Alberta government before the end of the fiscal year this year will amount to approximately $45,000, about the same as last year. E. Trowbridge, deputy provincial secretary, said.

Tuesday was the last day in which applications for refunds were received by the government. Mr. Trowbridge said about 14,000 applications had been received. Those turning in their plates received a 20 per cent rebate on their annual license fee.

Moderate Winter Pleases Ranchers

Cattle men and ranchers who can remember "way back when" crossed their fingers today and went on record as listing the present winter, to date, the best in several decades for stock on the open range.

There was one severe cold snap and a heavy snow at Xmas, but the animals were in excellent shape with plenty of feed available and little, if any damage resulted. Ranges Almost Clear.

On December 28, a Chinook cracked the back of the Arctic spell, and since then the ranges have virtually cleared of snow in many districts.

Protect yourself against Colds
Buckley Cough Mixture .40c bottle
Pinex " " .50c "
Eno Fruit Salts .85c "
Listerine .60c "
Mentholatum .60c "

Hame Straps, Harness Leather, Rivets,
Harness Thread & Needles, Wax, Snaps,
Buckles.

BANNER HARDWARE AND GROCERIES

NOTICE

The Annual Meeting of the Ratepayers of Chinook Consolidated S. D. No. 16 will be held in the School on Saturday January 14th at 1:30 p. m. for the purpose of receiving the reports for the year and for electing trustees for the ensuing year.

Signed,
Lorne Proudfoot
Secretary.

Says Fixed Price Not Wheat Solution

Montreal (C. P.) — The Dominion government's minimum when price was described by President Beaudry Lemau, of the Banque Canadienne Nationale as "merely a palliative."

Addressing the Bank's annual meeting, Mr. Lemau said the difference between the government price and present market quotations would "have to be made up by taxation, and this measure is, it best, merely a palliative; it may tide over temporary difficulties, it will not solve the wheat problems."

Other countries besides Canada, he added, harvested "bountiful crops" and prices, as a consequence, were depressed. Once international trade is freed of its shackles, the demand for wheat should stand in better relation to supply, whilst the producers would make a legitimate profit."

Apart from natural feed, the animals went on winter range in the best condition in years, thanks to a late fall and good grass.

And in event of heavy storms and severe cold, their are larger supplies of hay, stacked feed and grains available than in the past five years.

All lines of Fresh and Cured meats including Hamburger and home-made Sausage.
Poultry supplies, and laying mash for winter egg production.
Fresh frozen Fish at Winter prices.

LICENSED
Buyers of Hides & Horse Hair
at Market Prices

Chinook Meat Market

Shoe Repairing

Watch and Clock Repairs

Painting, Plastering, Carpentering & Paper Hanging

Prices Reasonable

W. J. Gallagher
1st Door North of Hotel

1939 RADIOS from $29.95 up

Fresh Stock of
"A." "B." & "C."
BATTERIES

Radio Tubes Tested Free
ELECTRIC & ACETYLENE
Welding

COOLEY BROS.

RADIO HEADQUARTERS

Chinook, Alta.

Phone 10

CATCH COLD EASILY?

VICKS VAPORUB

helps prevent many colds

COLDS HANG ON AND ON?

VICKS VAPORUB

helps end a cold quicker

FOLLOW VICKS' PLAN FOR BETTER CONTROL OF COLDS

Full details of the Plan in each Vicks Package

Flirting With Death

The study of a report issued in December by the Board of Transport Commissioners for Canada on "Dangerous Practices of Motorists, Drivers of other Vehicles and Pedestrians" Protected Crossings" leaves the student not only unsurprised at the statement that "motor accidents are becoming more frequent" but astounded that there are not more deaths at railway crossings than the information and statistics record.

The report covers in detail a number of dangerous practices observed at some of the more important protected railway crossings across the continent from Halifax to Vancouver during, roughly, a six-month period of 1938.

The crossings referred to in the report are those protected by various devices to prevent motorists running into danger when trains are approaching. Some of them are equipped with wig wags, warning lights and bells, some are manned by flagmen and others equipped with gates, automatic and otherwise.

The data contained in these tabulated reports gives date, hour and location and the number of the items of the automobile or truck involved in some dangerous practice observed, presumably by some official who was stationed in the vicinity at the time of the reported occurrence.

Since at each particular crossing specified in the report, only two or three dates are listed in each month and usually about the same hour of the day it is obvious that the specific cases cited are merely an infinitesimal fraction of the number of violations of commonsense and traffic regulations that actually occur, not only at any one and every one of these protected crossings, but that hundreds, nay thousands of chances are being taken daily at innumerable unprotected crossings throughout the country.

Dangerous Dodging

That the game of trying to beat the train to the crossing is being indulged in daily all over the country by hundreds, if not thousands, of drivers is quite evident from a careful perusal and analysis of a summary of the report, since this leads numerically all other "offences" at protected crossings.

Out of a list of 24 forms of dangerous practices observed at protected railway crossings across the Dominion, with a total of 340 cases cited, no less than 140, or 40.7 of the total are listed under the caption "Crossed in front of approaching train", despite the fact that some form of warning signal was in operation at the time.

How desperately anxious many motorists are to get across the tracks ahead of the oncoming train is illustrated in the statement that of the 340 cases recorded a total of 42, or 12.1 per cent, of the total drove under the gates while being lowered, and even the fact that gates were actually down to bar the way, did not deter 31 drivers or 8.9 per cent, of the total continuing their headlong course and crashing through and damaging the gates.

When such recklessness is displayed on the highways by a large number of drivers it is no wonder that accidents are increasing and what is worse is the fact that deaths and injuries are increasing despite a vigorous educational campaign being conducted by radio and through the press against carelessness and in face of a continuous increase in the number of safeguards that are being installed by governments, automobile associations and other organizations interested in efforts to make the highways safe.

Of Doublet Value

"Regardless of stop signal, passed over in front of engine. Very close." With variations in wording the foregoing citation appears under the heading "Dangerous Practices" and fills up two pages of the report covering incidents observed on widely separated dates at one crossing alone in Saskatchewan, and this is one of the crossings fully equipped with all the usual automatic signalling devices.

Even a hasty glance at the report leaves one wondering whether such safety devices are of any value at all in view of the persistence with which they are ignored to the danger, not only of the driver of the car or truck concerned, but too often to the peril of passengers as well.

The appearance of railway tracks at crossings ahead, whether protected or not, should instantly inspire an urge to exercise caution in the minds of all drivers, knowing as they must do, the inexorableness of a heavy railway train being hauled by a steam or electrically driven locomotive. Instead of that, however, it is a desire to desire to experience the thrill of flirting with death by trying to "beat the train to the crossing" and apparently the closer the shave the better.

It is difficult to know what to do to curb the insanity of such drivers, except perhaps to check up on them at some of these crossings and in every case of such wild bravado to suspend their licenses for a first offence and to cancel them entirely the second time they are caught.

Reductions Forecast

League Of Nations May Dismiss Some Of Its Staff Members

Drastic reductions in appropriations and dismissal of staff members in League of Nations offices were forecast in the budget committee's report.

The committee recommended that the 1939 budget, now set at $7,232,000, be reduced by $1,518,750. As reasons for the proposed economies were cited withdrawal of some states and the end of surpluses accrued from back payments by members.

Gloicester, England, is to have a new $500,000 airplane factory.

New Germ Destroyer

Doctors Find Bacteria Can Be Killed By Light Waves

A new method of electrocuting disease germs with light waves was announced before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Dr. Harvey C. Rentchew and Dr. Rudolph Nagy of the Westinghouse research laboratories, Philadelphia, reported they had found one of the weak spots in the lives of bacteria. Apparently, they declared, each different type of germ can be killed by subjecting it to a specific intensity of light for a definite period of time.

Practical value of their discovery will probably be in the hospital operating room where a special light will be focussed on the incision to kill any germs which may be present to cause infection during or after the operation.

It may soon become possible for the surgeon to push a button which will select and create rays to destroy gas gangrene germs, tetanus bacteria, fever-causing organisms, or the types which cause blood diseases.

Brought Cost Down

Before the Canadian field of radium was discovered, most of the world's supply came from the Belgian Congo, and sold for $70,000 a gram, or more than twice the present price of $34,000 an ounce.

The tomato is the vegetable canned in the largest volume in the United States, with peaches and pineapples, leading the canned fruits. 2289

A Youth City

Plan Gathering Place For Empire Youth In The Heart Of London

A dream dating back to the coronation—the foundation of a 11,000,000 empire youth city in the heart of London—has moved a stride nearer realization.

Before a gathering of United Kingdom headmasters at the Guildhall, and later to representatives of the Empire press, the Earl of Bessborough, former governor-general of Canada and prime minister in the movement, produced for the first time in public architectural drawings for the project and outlined details of what he described as a "glorious ideal."

The idea of a youth city, Lord Bessborough said, emerged from the empire youth rally at the time of the coronation, and the entire project had been designed for youth by young people.

Much ground work already has been accomplished but such a vital undertaking would not be launched until public opinion throughout the empire has been canvassed.

He was confident enthusiastic support would be forthcoming from empire-minded men, public spirited organizations and school children themselves.

The cost, which is almost $5,000,000, might sound like an extravagant expenditure, "but let us not forget that only a few months ago we emerged from a great crisis," Lord Bessborough said.

He realized our dreams would be the most compare with the cost of a destroyer. A destroyer is built for defence, and so will the youth city be. Now is the time, therefore, to start building it before a new challenge comes to us."

The former governor-general cited the following cardinal objects of the plan:

1. To provide accommodation for visiting students of secondary school age from the United Kingdom, the dominions, colonies and foreign countries.

2. To supply facilities for education, entertainment and recreation, a home away from home.

3. To symbolize the spirit of unity and co-operation among the family of free peoples.

4. To express the empire's confidence in the qualities of the younger generation.

5. To stand as a perpetual challenge to disinterested service.

The proposed youth city would embrace a large central block costing approximately $250,000 which would be met by a grant from public funds.

In this building it is planned to lay out a theatre seating 1,200, a restaurant, gymnasium, swimming pools, a chapel, library, lecture halls, museums, offices and board rooms.

Radiating from the centre would be smaller dormitory wings representing each of the dominions, India and the colonies, each designed to accommodate 200 students.

Aviators Had To Run

Were Chased By Bull After They Made Forced Landing

No sooner had the crew of a Royal Air Force bomber forced down in a field near Loughborough, England, escaped one peril by landing without mishap, then they had to run at top speed from another. A bull, enraged at their intrusion, went for them the moment they stepped from the airplane. They found downy just in time on the other side of a hedge. Thus thwarted, the bull turned and charged the plane, but thought better of it when he came up to the machine.

Has Nickel-Steel Propeller

Boat On St. Lawrence River Is Largest Ice-Breaker In World

The world's largest ice-breaking boat is one which keeps the upper St. Lawrence River navigable throughout the winter months. The ship's huge propeller is composed of four detachable nickel steel blades, each weighing 5,800 pounds. Nickel steel is required since the propeller must be sufficiently strong to resist the shocks of heavy impacts at low temperatures, reports a White Metal News letter.

Coral, which looks like a plant, but which really belongs to the family of animals known as polyps was believed to be an insect for centuries.

Tunis, capital of Tunisia in North Africa, has a population of 250,000.

ITCH

... STOPPED IN A MINUTE ...

Are you concerned with the itching tortures of eczema, urticaria, hives, or other skin ailments? For quick and happy relief, use the cooling, soothing, itching relief cream. Its gentle oils soothe the irritation. Clear, granular and white. It dries it out. Stops the most intense itching instantly. A tried and true skin doctor's advice. It's at drug stores.

TAKE THE LEAD OUT OF YOUR LEGS

Get Oxygen In Your Blood and You'll Get The Pep That Sends You Bounding Up The Stairs

People who suffer from such leg become oxygen has been completely cut off from their blood. This is the cause of leg cramps. If your blood lacks red corpuscles, they carry the oxygen you breathe in to every part of your system. Without enough oxygen-carrying particles, your kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels slow down. Your skin sags, your hair falls out, your nerves may become jittery—you live quickly—but feel depressed.

What you need is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These world-famous pills help make more and better red corpuscles and thus increase the oxygen-carrying power of your blood. Get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today at your druggist. See for yourself how quickly this time-proven blood-builder will help give you back your pep. Cost 50¢ a bottle. C. E. Williams, Inc., New York, N. Y.

Southern Polar Air Route

Would Save 10 Days In Africa-Australia Flight

A "southern polar air route" which would cut an estimated 10,000 miles from the air journey between South Africa and Australia, is under consideration, the Government disclosed in a white paper—an official report.

To fly from Cape Town to Sydney now one must travel the length of Africa northward to Alexandria, and then follow the "Empire route" via India and Singapore.

It is proposed to obtain permission from France to use the little-known Adelle Land, 1,400 miles from the South Pole for a stop-off point. Planes from Africa would follow the southern polar circle route to Adelle Land, then swing northeast to Australia, saving an estimated ten days in flying time.

In return for French co-operation, the Government of the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand would give French aviation the right to use their south polar territories.

Just Another Mystery

Bed That Bounces Is Reported From Cabin In Virginia

Folks in Jonesville, Virginia, looked for some natural explanation to the riddle of nine-year-old Bertha Marie Sybert's "bouncing bed," a phenomenon she has aged grandmother attributed to witchery.

People of substance throughout have gone to the three-room cabin and returned to tell of a scratching and bumping and violent quivering of the child's old wooden bed.

Mrs. Rebecca Sybert, the grandmother, says it started last month with a gentle scratching on the bed shortly after Bertha retired at her usual 6 p.m. bed-time. As nights passed, the scratching increased to a pumping and thumping and then the bed began to quiver and quake. Mrs. Victor Sward, a Baptist minister, said he saw all that Mrs. Cybert described and added:

"Such things are just beyond my knowledge."

Bertha says she isn't frightened, but it's "very uncomfortable."

SELECTED RECIPES

HAM WAFFLES

2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 egg yolks, well beaten
1/4 cups milk
1/4 tablespoons melted butter or other shortening
3 egg whites, stiffly beaten
1 egg finely cut, boiled ham
Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Combine egg yolks and milk; add gradually to flour, beating only until smooth. Add shortening. Fold in egg whites. Bake in hot waffle iron. Serve with butter and maple-flavoured syrup, or with scrambled eggs. Makes four or five four-section waffles.

SOUR MILK WAFFLES

2 cups sifted cake flour
1/2 teaspoon double-acting baking powder
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1/4 cups milk
1/4 cups sour milk or buttermilk
1/4 tablespoons melted butter or other shortening
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, soda, salt, and sugar, and sift again. Combine egg yolks and milk; add gradually to flour mixture beating only until smooth. Add shortening. Fold in egg whites. Bake in hot waffle iron. Serve with butter and syrup. Makes four or five 4-section waffles.

Not So Gullible Now

Not many hundreds of years ago, people were willing to believe in almost any kind of creature that anyone cared to invent. There were mermaids, satyrs, unicorns, lamias, sirens, centaurs and sea serpents of various sizes and descriptions.

Bones of a giant horse and dwarf buffalo were discovered in South Africa caves by scientists seeking further trace of man's purported ape-like features.

Great Aid To Trappers

Airplanes And Wireless Have Made Their Work Easier

Canada's oldest business—trapping—has been "streamlined" through use of the aeroplane and wireless. The swift drama of modern methods has replaced the picturesque of the canoe and portage.

The majority of the estimated 300 to 400 trappers operating in the Northwest Territories and remote Northern regions of British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan now take full advantage of commercial aviation and widespread radio facilities of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals.

Each fall Edmonton commercial aviation firms carry north nearly 150 trappers, their dogs, canoes, traps, and provisions. Throughout the winter aeroplanes call at the trappers' cabins or the nearest post and freight the furs to market. In the spring the modern Courcier de Bois are whisked from the loneliness of their trap lines to civilization in a few hours.

Besides eliminating many weeks on the trail to and from the trapping ground, the aeroplane enables trappers to locate new ground quickly after old lines have been "trapped out."

The plane also makes possible exploration of good territory formerly too remote for economical fur-catching, avoids the danger of losing furs in hazardous trips on swift-running rivers in the spring and allows marketing of furs in prime condition, when they bring the highest prices.

Right Man In Right Place

Commander Of Mediterranean Fleet Noted For Great Courage

Admiral Sir Dudley Pound, whose command of the Mediterranean Fleet is his last, for another year is the right man in the right place.

Bluff and breezy in manner, states the News of the World, he has at the same time a high reputation for seamanship, and is the author of a standard book on ship organization. A convinced believer in the big ship, he has never concealed his view. In recent years, that Britain must be prepared for any emergency in the Mediterranean.

He is a man of great personal courage. On one occasion he saved the life of a drowning stoker in British Columbia. On another, when he was in command of the battleship Superb, he ordered himself to be lowered, with a warrant officer and a petty officer, into a hold in which three men had been overcome by foul air.

The petty officer was hauled up unconscious; but Comdr. Pound—as he then was—and the warrant officer succeeded in sending up the three victims before they themselves were drawn out more dead than alive.

Must Play Anthem Slower

A piece of music criticism from Chancellor Hitler resulted in an order from Heinrich Himmler, chief of all German police, that the German national anthem, Deutschland Ueber Alles, shall henceforth be played "at a speed in conformity with its nature." The fuhrer complained at a recent Nazi meeting the anthem was played too fast.

Was Giant Reptile

The chasmosaur, giant reptile of the Cretaceous period, had a body similar to a porpoise, and an astonishing snake-like neck. It had a length of 40 feet, and inhabited the area now known as Kansas, which, at that time, was a vast sea, as deposits now indicate.

"Mother, have you got a penny for a poor old man?"

"Where's the poor man, my son?"

"Down at the corner selling ice cream waffles."

WELL, I MUST BE GOING

HAVE A SNACK, FIRST

OH, DON'T GO TO ANY TROUBLE, BILL

NO TROUBLE, I'LL RAISE THE REFRIG.

M-M-M. THESE BITS ARE GOOD. HOW COME THEY'RE SO FRESH

THE WIFE WRAPS THEM IN PARA-SANI

IT SURELY DOES THE TRICK

HEAVY DUTY PARASANI

PARA-SANI HEAVY DUTY PAPER

APPLEFORD PAPER PRODUCTS LTD.

WAREHOUSES AT WINNIPEG - REGINA - SASKATOON - CALGARY - EDMONTON

Try ICE CREAM

made by Jack Frost

Let Jack Frost and your own wits do the rest of your dessert-worship. Just mix a package of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder (cost about 12¢) with one quart of half milk, half cream. Put the bowl outside on your window-sill in freezing weather—stir a few times and Jack Frost'll do the rest! And the result—the smoothest, richest ice cream you ever tasted! Comes in 5 tempting flavours—chocolate, strawberry, vanilla, lemon, lemon. For three pints of delicious, economical, easy-to-make ice cream ask your grocer for it today!

JELL-O ICE CREAM POWDER

Memorials Of Coronation

Will Recall Event For Many Years Throughout British Empire

The coronation of King George and Queen Elizabeth in the spring of 1937 will be recalled for a long time to come by 10,000 things of beauty and utilitarian value around the British empire, and even in some countries that are not of the British circle.

The Coronation Planting Committee, with headquarters in London, tells of results achieved under its leadership. The objective of the committee was to encourage and advise upon endeavors that would lead to permanent, living memorials of the coronation in all parts of the British world. The planting of trees, provision of open spaces, recreation grounds, public gardens, permanent window-box displays and other decorative schemes or recreational enterprises were noteworthy forms of commemoration to which the committee gave attention.

Information on all these undertakings, together with photographs in many cases, is being whirled into a volume to be known as "The Royal Record." The original volume will be presented to the King, and copies will be made available to the public. The entire undertaking—the projects by the thousands that have gone to mark the coronation and the preparation of the volume telling of them all by word and picture—reflects imagination. It is another of those things that illustrates the practical interest with which a throne may be regarded by the subjects served by it—Regina Leader-Post.

The tuna, a fish that sometimes weighs more than 1,000 pounds, is sold mostly in half-pound cans.

PATENTS

AN OFFER TO EVERY INVENTOR. List of inventions and full information sent free. THE RAMSAY COMPANY, Registered Patent Attorneys, 273 Bank Street, Ottawa, Canada.

EARN 50¢ to $200 OR MORE EVERY WEEK

Thousands of boys from coast to coast have Star Weekly that pay them well each week. If you are alert and a co-worker you can earn 50¢ to $200 more a week with a Star Weekly route in your district. If it is not your district, you only require an hour or two's work a week. You can easily build up a route of steady customers for Canada's favorite weekend paper because the Toronto Star Weekly is the greatest fun to read in Canada. So don't miss this chance to make some real money. Write today to the Circulation Department, A. & C. Star Weekly, 200 King Street West, Toronto, for particulars. Become The Star Weekly boy in your district. 871

NO FUSS

RELIEVING COLD DISCOMFORT THIS WAY!

Just Follow Simple Directions Below—and Use Fast-Acting "Aspirin" Tablets

It's the Way Thousands Know to Ease Pain and Discomfort of Colds and Sore Throat Accompanying Colds—Easy to Do

The simple way pictured above often brings amazingly fast relief from discomfort and sore throat accompanying colds.

Try it. Then—see your doctor. He probably will tell you to continue with "Aspirin" because it acts so fast to relieve discomforts of a cold, and to reduce fever.

This simple way backed by scientific authority, has largely supplanted the use of strong medicines in easing cold symptoms. Perhaps the wisest, most effective way yet discovered.

Demand and Get

"ASPIRIN"

TRADE-MARK REG.

© Courtenay Ryley Cooper.

WNU Service.

CHAPTER XI.—Continued

Hurriedly Hammond related through thick lips what had happened in Lew Snade's cabin. Sergeant Terry wheeled.

"Frey, you!" he shouted to two miners who had been assisting Timmy at the plane. "Come get this fellow. And you—" he indicated another gold seeker, "see if you can find a cot somewhere. Put it in that place—we've got to take this man to Rupert. And hurry—!"

The commands were obeyed. Whimpering, Lew Snade was carried away. Jeanne looked after him.

"Do you think he'll live?"

"He's got to live," Hammond answered grimly. "Until we find Bruce Kenning."

"Not necessarily," said Terry crisply. "A death-bed statement is valid evidence." He reached into his red tunic for a notebook. "Better give me the whole story."

"Must it be now?" Jeanne begged.

"Jack's hurt—"

The man rubbed a hand over his swollen face.

"I've got some saline up at the cabin," he said. "I'll smear it on."

"But—"

"I will."

"Although," Terry added, "from the way the wind's taking the blaze, maybe they'll get by. But we'd better not risk it. Get 'em all on the lake, where we know they'll be safe."

"Yes, sir."

"And if Bruce Kenning shows up anywhere, take charge of him. That's all—I'll be back as soon as I can make it."

Hammond raised a hand in half salute. Timmy Moon slowly turned his plane, taxied a short distance, headed the ship into the wind and took off, a great, carmine bird in the glow of the flames.

Hammond went on, hurrying for Jeanne's store, to find her there, loading what food her shelves possessed into the arms of waiting miners. He delivered Terry's orders. Then:

"Hammond's hard to kill," cut in Sergeant Terry. "He'll be all right."

Jeanne Towers shook her head as though she did not believe him. Hammond forced a laugh.

"I'm all right, Jeanne. I'd take twice this to do what I did to Kenning. Stop worrying about me."

Then, as tersely as possible, he obeyed Terry's command for the entire story of his fight. There was no time to be wasted in long descriptions or wordy theories. The fire was coming closer; from behind them the twisted streets of the little town were loud with howling huskies, the cries of women and the commands of men; the exodus toward the life rafts already was beginning. There would not be room on them for everyone—many must take their chances in the shallows of the lake, lying there with their nostrils barely above water. The rafts, in fact, were only for women and weaker men.

Sergeant Terry finished taking his notes and slipped shut his memorandum book.

"I've already sent out the other planes to Fourcross and Vanderhoof to get help," he said crisply. "I had intended to shoot Timmy Moon into Rupert alone. But I'd better go with him and take that man's statement on the way." He started to follow.

Timmy was in the cockpit, with the motor killing. Two men stood on the pontoons, shoving a cot through the cabin door, while two others waited on shore with the whining Snade in their arms.

Jeanne went to the injured man and laid a hand on his shoulder.

"Don't be panned at me," he begged. "I never planned it; honest to God, I didn't."

"I'm not sure at you," the girl said slowly. "I—guess you couldn't help yourself. You've never been able to help yourself, Lew."

Her hand lingered for a moment, then was withdrawn. Pale with emotion, Jeanne made one more plea to Jack to care for his hurts. Then she turned and went slowly back toward town and her store; the groceries on its shelves might be badly needed in the days to come. Sergeant Terry looked after her.

"She must have thought a lot of that fellow at some time or another," the mounted policeman said.

"She must have," Hammond answered, in a queer voice. "To be able to have forgiven him like that."

There had been something humbly sublime about it. Jack found himself wondering what Jack would have done under such circumstances, the vindication she would have heaped on this man, the questions as to what would become of her. All in all, Jack Hammond had gained perspective.

It was as though his subconscious brain had been gathering evidence for months, that it might allow the proper moment to lay a convincing case before his conscious mentality. Now it had been done, and all that was left was the hurt of it and his shame for himself. Suddenly, however, he put his thoughts aside.

Lew Snade was carried aboard. A canoe awaited the Sergeant to ferry him the short distance to the airplane. He was snapping final instructions.

"I'm going to leave you in charge," he said. "Hear that, you men? Hammond here is in command of fire-fighting now. I get back. And Jeanne Towers better be responsible for the women."

"Yes, sir."

"Carry the news into town. See that everybody knows it."

"They hurried to obey. The Sergeant went on."

"You'd better start a back fire as soon as possible."

"Yes, in that marsh grass to the west. That's the danger point—embers will be dropping over there pretty soon. If that grass goes, the town goes."

"The town's going, anyway—but we must as well take the long chance to save it."

"I'll get at it."

"Better send what canoes are available around to the inlet and pick up Around the World Annie and her gang."

"I will."

"Although," Terry added, "from the way the wind's taking the blaze, maybe they'll get by. But we'd better not risk it. Get 'em all on the lake, where we know they'll be safe."

"Yes, sir."

"And if Bruce Kenning shows up anywhere, take charge of him. That's all—I'll be back as soon as I can make it."

Hammond raised a hand in half salute. Timmy Moon slowly turned his plane, taxied a short distance, headed the ship into the wind and took off, a great, carmine bird in the glow of the flames.

Hammond went on, hurrying for Jeanne's store, to find her there, loading what food her shelves possessed into the arms of waiting miners. He delivered Terry's orders. Then:

"Hammond's hard to kill," cut in Sergeant Terry. "He'll be all right."

Jeanne Towers shook her head as though she did not believe him. Hammond forced a laugh.

"I'm all right, Jeanne. I'd take twice this to do what I did to Kenning. Stop worrying about me."

Then, as tersely as possible, he obeyed Terry's command for the entire story of his fight. There was no time to be wasted in long descriptions or wordy theories. The fire was coming closer; from behind them the twisted streets of the little town were loud with howling huskies, the cries of women and the commands of men; the exodus toward the life rafts already was beginning. There would not be room on them for everyone—many must take their chances in the shallows of the lake, lying there with their nostrils barely above water. The rafts, in fact, were only for women and weaker men.

Sergeant Terry finished taking his notes and slipped shut his memorandum book.

"I've already sent out the other planes to Fourcross and Vanderhoof to get help," he said crisply. "I had intended to shoot Timmy Moon into Rupert alone. But I'd better go with him and take that man's statement on the way." He started to follow.

Timmy was in the cockpit, with the motor killing. Two men stood on the pontoons, shoving a cot through the cabin door, while two others waited on shore with the whining Snade in their arms.

Jeanne went to the injured man and laid a hand on his shoulder.

"Don't be panned at me," he begged. "I never planned it; honest to God, I didn't."

"I'm not sure at you," the girl said slowly. "I—guess you couldn't help yourself. You've never been able to help yourself, Lew."

Her hand lingered for a moment, then was withdrawn. Pale with emotion, Jeanne made one more plea to Jack to care for his hurts. Then she turned and went slowly back toward town and her store; the groceries on its shelves might be badly needed in the days to come. Sergeant Terry looked after her.

"She must have thought a lot of that fellow at some time or another," the mounted policeman said.

"She must have," Hammond answered, in a queer voice. "To be able to have forgiven him like that."

There had been something humbly sublime about it. Jack found himself wondering what Jack would have done under such circumstances, the vindication she would have heaped on this man, the questions as to what would become of her. All in all, Jack Hammond had gained perspective.

It was as though his subconscious brain had been gathering evidence for months, that it might allow the proper moment to lay a convincing case before his conscious mentality. Now it had been done, and all that was left was the hurt of it and his shame for himself. Suddenly, however, he put his thoughts aside.

Lew Snade was carried aboard. A canoe awaited the Sergeant to ferry him the short distance to the airplane. He was snapping final instructions.

"I'm going to leave you in charge," he said. "Hear that, you men? Hammond here is in command of fire-fighting now. I get back. And Jeanne Towers better be responsible for the women."

"Yes, sir."

"Carry the news into town. See that everybody knows it."

"They hurried to obey. The Sergeant went on."

"You'd better start a back fire as soon as possible."

"Yes, in that marsh grass to the west. That's the danger point—embers will be dropping over there pretty soon. If that grass goes, the town goes."

"The town's going, anyway—but we must as well take the long chance to save it."

"I'll get at it."

"Better send what canoes are available around to the inlet and pick up Around the World Annie and her gang."

"I will."

"Although," Terry added, "from the way the wind's taking the blaze, maybe they'll get by. But we'd better not risk it. Get 'em all on the lake, where we know they'll be safe."

"Yes, sir."

"And if Bruce Kenning shows up anywhere, take charge of him. That's all—I'll be back as soon as I can make it."

Hammond raised a hand in half salute. Timmy Moon slowly turned his plane, taxied a short distance, headed the ship into the wind and took off, a great, carmine bird in the glow of the flames.

Hammond went on, hurrying for Jeanne's store, to find her there, loading what food her shelves possessed into the arms of waiting miners. He delivered Terry's orders. Then:

"Hammond's hard to kill," cut in Sergeant Terry. "He'll be all right."

Jeanne Towers shook her head as though she did not believe him. Hammond forced a laugh.

"I'm all right, Jeanne. I'd take twice this to do what I did to Kenning. Stop worrying about me."

Then, as tersely as possible, he obeyed Terry's command for the entire story of his fight. There was no time to be wasted in long descriptions or wordy theories. The fire was coming closer; from behind them the twisted streets of the little town were loud with howling huskies, the cries of women and the commands of men; the exodus toward the life rafts already was beginning. There would not be room on them for everyone—many must take their chances in the shallows of the lake, lying there with their nostrils barely above water. The rafts, in fact, were only for women and weaker men.

Sergeant Terry finished taking his notes and slipped shut his memorandum book.

"I've already sent out the other planes to Fourcross and Vanderhoof to get help," he said crisply. "I had intended to shoot Timmy Moon into Rupert alone. But I'd better go with him and take that man's statement on the way." He started to follow.

Timmy was in the cockpit, with the motor killing. Two men stood on the pontoons, shoving a cot through the cabin door, while two others waited on shore with the whining Snade in their arms.

Jeanne went to the injured man and laid a hand on his shoulder.

"Don't be panned at me," he begged. "I never planned it; honest to God, I didn't."

"I'm not sure at you," the girl said slowly. "I—guess you couldn't help yourself. You've never been able to help yourself, Lew."

Her hand lingered for a moment, then was withdrawn. Pale with emotion, Jeanne made one more plea to Jack to care for his hurts. Then she turned and went slowly back toward town and her store; the groceries on its shelves might be badly needed in the days to come. Sergeant Terry looked after her.

"She must have thought a lot of that fellow at some time or another," the mounted policeman said.

"She must have," Hammond answered, in a queer voice. "To be able to have forgiven him like that."

There had been something humbly sublime about it. Jack found himself wondering what Jack would have done under such circumstances, the vindication she would have heaped on this man, the questions as to what would become of her. All in all, Jack Hammond had gained perspective.

It was as though his subconscious brain had been gathering evidence for months, that it might allow the proper moment to lay a convincing case before his conscious mentality. Now it had been done, and all that was left was the hurt of it and his shame for himself. Suddenly, however, he put his thoughts aside.

Lew Snade was carried aboard. A canoe awaited the Sergeant to ferry him the short distance to the airplane. He was snapping final instructions.

"I'm going to leave you in charge," he said. "Hear that, you men? Hammond here is in command of fire-fighting now. I get back. And Jeanne Towers better be responsible for the women."

"Yes, sir."

"Carry the news into town. See that everybody knows it."

"They hurried to obey. The Sergeant went on."

"You'd better start a back fire as soon as possible."

"Yes, in that marsh grass to the west. That's the danger point—embers will be dropping over there pretty soon. If that grass goes, the town goes."

"The town's going, anyway—but we must as well take the long chance to save it."

"I'll get at it."

"Better send what canoes are available around to the inlet and pick up Around the World Annie and her gang."

"I will."

"Although," Terry added, "from the way the wind's taking the blaze, maybe they'll get by. But we'd better not risk it. Get 'em all on the lake, where we know they'll be safe."

"Yes, sir."

"And if Bruce Kenning shows up anywhere, take charge of him. That's all—I'll be back as soon as I can make it."

Hammond raised a hand in half salute. Timmy Moon slowly turned his plane, taxied a short distance, headed the ship into the wind and took off, a great, carmine bird in the glow of the flames.

Hammond went on, hurrying for Jeanne's store, to find her there, loading what food her shelves possessed into the arms of waiting miners. He delivered Terry's orders. Then:

"Hammond's hard to kill," cut in Sergeant Terry. "He'll be all right."

Jeanne Towers shook her head as though she did not believe him. Hammond forced a laugh.

"I'm all right, Jeanne. I'd take twice this to do what I did to Kenning. Stop worrying about me."

Then, as tersely as possible, he obeyed Terry's command for the entire story of his fight. There was no time to be wasted in long descriptions or wordy theories. The fire was coming closer; from behind them the twisted streets of the little town were loud with howling huskies, the cries of women and the commands of men; the exodus toward the life rafts already was beginning. There would not be room on them for everyone—many must take their chances in the shallows of the lake, lying there with their nostrils barely above water. The rafts, in fact, were only for women and weaker men.

Sergeant Terry finished taking his notes and slipped shut his memorandum book.

"I've already sent out the other planes to Fourcross and Vanderhoof to get help," he said crisply. "I had intended to shoot Timmy Moon into Rupert alone. But I'd better go with him and take that man's statement on the way." He started to follow.

Timmy was in the cockpit, with the motor killing. Two men stood on the pontoons, shoving a cot through the cabin door, while two others waited on shore with the whining Snade in their arms.

Jeanne went to the injured man and laid a hand on his shoulder.

"Don't be panned at me," he begged. "I never planned it; honest to God, I didn't."

"I'm not sure at you," the girl said slowly. "I—guess you couldn't help yourself. You've never been able to help yourself, Lew."

Her hand lingered for a moment, then was withdrawn. Pale with emotion, Jeanne made one more plea to Jack to care for his hurts. Then she turned and went slowly back toward town and her store; the groceries on its shelves might be badly needed in the days to come. Sergeant Terry looked after her.

"She must have thought a lot of that fellow at some time or another," the mounted policeman said.

"She must have," Hammond answered, in a queer voice. "To be able to have forgiven him like that."

There had been something humbly sublime about it. Jack found himself wondering what Jack would have done under such circumstances, the vindication she would have heaped on this man, the questions as to what would become of her. All in all, Jack Hammond had gained perspective.

It was as though his subconscious brain had been gathering evidence for months, that it might allow the proper moment to lay a convincing case before his conscious mentality. Now it had been done, and all that was left was the hurt of it and his shame for himself. Suddenly, however, he put his thoughts aside.

Lew Snade was carried aboard. A canoe awaited the Sergeant to ferry him the short distance to the airplane. He was snapping final instructions.

"I'm going to leave you in charge," he said. "Hear that, you men? Hammond here is in command of fire-fighting now. I get back. And Jeanne Towers better be responsible for the women."

"Yes, sir."

"Carry the news into town. See that everybody knows it."

"They hurried to obey. The Sergeant went on."

"You'd better start a back fire as soon as possible."

"Yes, in that marsh grass to the west. That's the danger point—embers will be dropping over there pretty soon. If that grass goes, the town goes."

"The town's going, anyway—but we must as well take the long chance to save it."

"I'll get at it."

"Better send what canoes are available around to the inlet and pick up Around the World Annie and her gang."

"I will."

"Although," Terry added, "from the way the wind's taking the blaze, maybe they'll get by. But we'd better not risk it. Get 'em all on the lake, where we know they'll be safe."

"Yes, sir."

"And if Bruce Kenning shows up anywhere, take charge of him. That's all—I'll be back as soon as I can make it."

Hammond raised a hand in half salute. Timmy Moon slowly turned his plane, taxied a short distance, headed the ship into the wind and took off, a great, carmine bird in the glow of the flames.

Hammond went on, hurrying for Jeanne's store, to find her there, loading what food her shelves possessed into the arms of waiting miners. He delivered Terry's orders. Then:

"Hammond's hard to kill," cut in Sergeant Terry. "He'll be all right."

Jeanne Towers shook her head as though she did not believe him. Hammond forced a laugh.

"I'm all right, Jeanne. I'd take twice this to do what I did to Kenning. Stop worrying about me."

Then, as tersely as possible, he obeyed Terry's command for the entire story of his fight. There was no time to be wasted in long descriptions or wordy theories. The fire was coming closer; from behind them the twisted streets of the little town were loud with howling huskies, the cries of women and the commands of men; the exodus toward the life rafts already was beginning. There would not be room on them for everyone—many must take their chances in the shallows of the lake, lying there with their nostrils barely above water. The rafts, in fact, were only for women and weaker men.

Sergeant Terry finished taking his notes and slipped shut his memorandum book.

"I've already sent out the other planes to Fourcross and Vanderhoof to get help," he said crisply. "I had intended to shoot Timmy Moon into Rupert alone. But I'd better go with him and take that man's statement on the way." He started to follow.

Timmy was in the cockpit, with the motor killing. Two men stood on the pontoons, shoving a cot through the cabin door, while two others waited on shore with the whining Snade in their arms.

Jeanne went to the injured man and laid a hand on his shoulder.

"Don't be panned at me," he begged. "I never planned it; honest to God, I didn't."

"I'm not sure at you," the girl said slowly. "I—guess you couldn't help yourself. You've never been able to help yourself, Lew."

Her hand lingered for a moment, then was withdrawn. Pale with emotion, Jeanne made one more plea to Jack to care for his hurts. Then she turned and went slowly back toward town and her store; the groceries on its shelves might be badly needed in the days to come. Sergeant Terry looked after her.

"She must have thought a lot of that fellow at some time or another," the mounted policeman said.

"She must have," Hammond answered, in a queer voice. "To be able to have forgiven him like that."

There had been something humbly sublime about it. Jack found himself wondering what Jack would have done under such circumstances, the vindication she would have heaped on this man, the questions as to what would become of her. All in all, Jack Hammond had gained perspective.

It was as though his subconscious brain had been gathering evidence for months, that it might allow the proper moment to lay a convincing case before his conscious mentality. Now it had been done, and all that was left was the hurt of it and his shame for himself. Suddenly, however, he put his thoughts aside.

Lew Snade was carried aboard. A canoe awaited the Sergeant to ferry him the short distance to the airplane. He was snapping final instructions.

"I'm going to leave you in charge," he said. "Hear that, you men? Hammond here is in command of fire-fighting now. I get back. And Jeanne Towers better be responsible for the women."

"Yes, sir."

"Carry the news into town. See that everybody knows it."

"They hurried to obey. The Sergeant went on."

"You'd better start a back fire as soon as possible."

"Yes, in that marsh grass to the west. That's the danger point—embers will be dropping over there pretty soon. If that grass goes, the town goes."

"The town's going, anyway—but we must as well take the long chance to save it."

"I'll get at it."

"Better send what canoes are available around to the inlet and pick up Around the World Annie and her gang."

"I will."

"Although," Terry added, "from the way the wind's taking the blaze, maybe they'll get by. But we'd better not risk it. Get 'em all on the lake, where we know they'll be safe."

"Yes, sir."

"And if Bruce Kenning shows up anywhere, take charge of him. That's all—I'll be back as soon as I can make it."

Hammond raised a hand in half salute. Timmy Moon slowly turned his plane, taxied a short distance, headed the ship into the wind and took off, a great, carmine bird in the glow of the flames.

Hammond went on, hurrying for Jeanne's store, to find her there, loading what food her shelves possessed into the arms of waiting miners. He delivered Terry's orders. Then:

"Hammond's hard to kill," cut in Sergeant Terry. "He'll be all right."

Jeanne Towers shook her head as though she did not believe him. Hammond forced a laugh.

CHINOOK UNITED CHURCH

Sunday School at 2:45 p.m.
Mr. Charyk, M. A. Supt.
Church Service will be held next Sunday at 1:45 p.m.
Rev. Mr. Whaley
Youngstown

See E. Robinson

For DRAYING
Or TRUCKING
Any Kind
Satisfaction
Guaranteed

RESTAURANT
and ROOMS

Meals at all hours
All Kinds Tobacco
and Cigarettes
Fresh OYSTERS
SOFT DRINKS and Confectionary
Ice Cream
Bricks

MAH BROS.

COMPLETE YOUR TRAVEL ARRANGEMENTS AND BUY YOUR
Steamship and Rail Tickets
FROM THE
LOCAL AGENT
CANADIAN NATIONAL
The Great Canadian
Rail and Steamship Lines
1- All Parts of the World

For Better
Light
Better
Sight
USE
EDISON
MAZDA
LAMPS
CANADIAN GENERAL ELECTRIC CO. LTD.

THE LADIES' CARD CLUB MET TUESDAY

The Ladies Card Club met at the home of Mrs. E. Sawyer the honors were shared by Mrs. Jas. Peyton and Mrs. L. Robinson.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Fargett.

The skating rink was completed this week and the young folks seem to be making good use of it.

Two rinks from Chinook are competing in the Excel B.spiel this week.

EXCURSIONS to the PACIFIC COAST

Visit VANCOUVER
VICTORIA
PRINCE RUPERT
SEATTLE
PORTLAND
SAN FRANCISCO
LOS ANGELES

LOW FARES on sale daily to May 15th. Also specially reduced fares on sale to February 28th between certain points in Canada.

Generous Return Limits and Stop-over privileges.

Travel in Air-Conditioned Comfort
Attractive meals at moderate cost in the Pullman Car. Also special train service available to Coach and Tourist car passengers.

Full particulars from your local agent.
V939-30
CANADIAN NATIONAL

'Iron Lung' Request Reaches Destination

Lethbridge (Special) — The Galt Hospital Board has been advised from England that its letter making application for one of the "iron lung" offered as a gift to British hospitals by Lord Nuffield, millionaire British manufacturer and philanthropist, had been received.

It is explained in the letter, which came from the Radcliffe Infirmary, Oxford, that the High Commissioner for Canada was being asked to ascertain the number of respirators likely to be required in the Dominion, and that when this information was obtained, it was probable a broadcast would be made through Canada, inviting applications from interested hospitals to a pacific address in Canada.

Forecasts Clothing Made of Pulpwood

Winnipeg C. (P.) — Hon. P. Heenan, Ontario, minister of lands and forests, today predicted clothing made from sulphite produced from pulpwood, would some day present Northwestern Ontario with a valuable industry. He said it would probably be the "biggest thing in Northwestern Ontario in the near future".

Mr. N. D. Stewart of Lacombe is a Chinook visitor this week.

Radiantly healthy FISH HELPS KEEP THEM SO

Canadian Fish and Shellfish is grand nourishing food for active youngsters always "on the go". It keeps them up, and restores their energy... contains an abundance of proteins and minerals... the "protective" vitamin A and the precious sunshine vitamin D that builds strong bones and sound teeth. There are over 60 different kinds of Canadian Fish and Shellfish available all year 'round, whether fresh, frozen, smoked, dried, canned or pickled. They offer you an amazing number of inexpensive dishes that the family will enjoy to the utmost. Arrange with your dealer for fish several times a week.

WRITE FOR FREE BOOKLET!

DEPARTMENT OF FISHERIES, OTTAWA.
Please send me your free Booklet, "100 Tempting Fish Recipes".

Name: _____
(Please print letters plainly)

Address: _____

BAKED FISH CAKES

2 cupfuls flaked fish (cooked or canned), 2 cupfuls bread crumbs, 1/2 teaspoonful salt, 1/4 teaspoonful pepper, 1/2 green pepper, chopped, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 eggs, 1/2 cupful milk. Combine flaked fish, bread crumbs, seasonings, green pepper and lemon juice, beat eggs, combine with milk and mix with fish. Press into grooved circular cups and bake in oven (375° F.) for 15 minutes. Serve 6 to 8. Serve unmodified with egg-omlette sauce. Garnish with parsley.

Canadian Food News

"We eat with our eyes first" is been said over and over again, and how true it is. Notice how children react to a colorful meal, and even your own appetite puts on seven-league boots, when you know that dinner is going to look as well as taste good. That's what makes this dinner taste doubly delicious, because you have the flavour and colour to entice you to enjoy it to the full.

Canadian Finnan Haddie With Tomato & Cheese

Select thick Canadian Finnan Haddie and cover with cold water, flesh side down, for half an hour. Drain and cover with water that has just boiled; and let stand for 15 minutes. Drain, dot the flesh side with butter, and broil 20 minutes. Lay on hot platter and cover with the following sauce. Heat one can condensed tomato soup with one tablespoon grated cheese, 1 quarter teaspoon dry mustard and one quarter cup top milk, blend well and pour over the fish.

Potatoe chips are an ideal accompaniment to such a dinner, and the vegetables should be green beans or peas, served piping hot and well drained.

Try this for a lunch dish when you're in a hurry and the children come rushing in from school before your morning's work is quite done. Open a can of Canadian sardines packed in tomato sauce, and drain, reserving the sauce. Broil the sardines for 5 minutes lay on fingers of toast, and pour the tomato sauce—which has been heated—over the top. Serve with baked or reheated potato, and let the children have a big cup of cocoa, and some little cup cakes for dessert.

Mrs. Norman O'Malley and baby are spending a week at the home of her parents at Sedalia.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Blagen of Sedalia visited for a week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. O'Malley.

Results of the Novelty Bonspiel will be published next week.

G. Czerkas of Elnora has displaced Mr. Jansweick on the section here. Mr. Jansweick has gone to Youngstown where he will be employed.

LOOK FOLKS!
A REAL MONEY-SAVER
Through a special arrangement with the Publishers we can, for a limited time, offer new and old Subscribers, these outstanding Publications in combination with our local newspaper, at a Remarkably Low Cost.

"BIG THREE" OFFER
THIS NEWSPAPER 1 YR. AND YOUR CHOICE ANY 2 IN GROUP MARK AN "X" BEFORE THE 2 YOU DESIRE.

(1) Free Press Prairie Farmer ... 1 yr.	(1) Family Herald & Wily Star ... 1 yr.	All Three $2.25
(1) Editorial Review ... 1 yr.	(1) National Home Monthly ... 1 yr.
(1) Canadian Magazine ... 1 yr.	(1) Rod and Gun ... 1 yr.
(1) Woman's Home Companion ... 1 yr.	(1) Open Road (Boys) ... 1 yr.
(1) Christian Herald ... 6 mths.	(1) Parents Magazine ... 6 mths.

"POPULAR DEMAND" OFFER
THIS NEWSPAPER 1 YR. AND YOUR CHOICE 1 OTHER IN GROUP MARK AN "X" BEFORE THE 1 YOU DESIRE.

(1) Free Press Prairie Farmer ... 1 yr.	(1) Family Herald & Wily Star ... 1 yr.	Both Only $2.00
(1) Western Producer ... 1 yr.	(1) Country Guide & New West Farmer ... 3 yrs.
(1) National Home Monthly ... 1 yr.	(1) Canadian Magazine ... 1 yr.
(1) Editorial Review ... 1 yr.	(1) Parents Magazine ... 6 mths.
(1) True Story ... 1 yr.	(1) Christian Herald ... 6 mths.

FILL OUT COUPON & MAIL TODAY
Please clip list of magazines after checking ones desired. Fill out coupon carefully.
Gentlemen: I enclose $_____ I am checking below the offer desired with a year's subscription in your name.
(1) BIG THREE OFFER (1) POPULAR DEMAND OFFER
Name _____
Post Office _____
R.R. _____ Province _____

These Offers
Fully Guaranteed
ACT NOW
and SAVE!

CHINOOK HOTEL
Try Our Meals
GOOD ROOMS
at reasonable price
DANCE
Friday Night, Jan. 13th.